Helping people to live in warmer, healthier homes

Many people are anxious about home energy costs and fuel bills. Keeping warm and well is essential but isn't always easy.

This workshop is for professionals and volunteers who come into contact with people needing advice and guidance on; managing their energy, keeping warm, raising their income, saving money on their fuel, and dealing with their fuel bills.

This especially includes you if:

- You visit people at home as part of your work.
- You are a volunteer who visits people at home or helps out at a luncheon club, parent and toddler group, coffee morning or other community activity.
- You are an individual who would like to help family or a neighbour, who is anxious about paying fuel bills.

By being aware of the problems around affordable warmth and knowing where you can refer people, you can help them access the services they need.

We are particularly keen to welcome people who live or work in rural areas but everyone is welcome to attend.
